INTRODUCTION

This Index has been made possible by the concurrence and support of the Josiah Royce Society and of the Society for the Advancement of American Philosophy, along with the support of Cincinnati's Xavier University, the Xavier University Philosophy Department, and the Chicago Province of the Society of Jesus. Beyond the generosity of these institutions, many individuals convinced of the need to 'dig' into the Harvard Archives Royce Papers (HARP) have lent their aid and encouragement to our work.

Direct engagement in the project began in July 2008 and closed with a semi-final draft in September 2009. The final draft was created after members of the Royce Society's Critical Edition Committee reviewed and offered suggestions for revision in 2010. The long-range aim of the project has been to prepare a document to support application to the National Endowment for the Humanities for financial support of a Critical Edition of Royce's writings.

The goal of the comprehensive 2008-2009 review of the entire Harvard Archives Royce collection has been to describe and date (if possible) the documents, and to evaluate whether a particular Roycean writing merits inclusion in the Critical Edition. That extensive review is reflected in this Index. The Index not only embellishes on the Harvard Archives' "Finding Aid" to the Royce Papers. It provides more detailed information than was possible for the Harvard archivists to include in their document. This Index also offers a historical and philosophical context within which to consider the Royce Papers. Along with the "Appendix to the Harvard Archives' Finding Aid" (included here as Appendix C), it is our hope that the present work will act as a road map for scholars in their work with Royce. All these tools are available on-line. Scholars are encouraged to make use of these resources, with the proviso that proper citation be given both to the copyrighted Index and to the Harvard University Archives as sources.

This Index is divided into three main sections. Part I includes Royce's book-length works. Part II organizes his shorter texts, both published and unpublished, in chronological order. (To the degree dates are not certain, they have been estimated and noted as such.) These shorter works include individual articles, essays, and lectures. Part III reviews the work contained in the Harvard Archives Royce Papers Boxes 99 and up.¹ While Boxes 1-98 consist of bound folio volumes, with Royce manuscripts mounted on pages (see Appendix C for a complete description), the boxes described by Part III contain loose sheets, notebooks, correspondence and memorabilia, with documents roughly grouped as follows:

¹ The number of boxes in the collection is currently 155, but box numbers are held in reserve, and the top number may vary.

- Logicalia (although non-logic work is interspersed): Boxes 107-114
- Royce's Undergraduate and Graduate School work: Boxes 115-120
- Professional incoming correspondence: Boxes 121-124
- Family (chiefly incoming) correspondence: Boxes 125, 134, and 136

Finally, the present Index is not limited to the Royce writings contained in the Harvard Archives. Indeed, although many manuscripts from Royce's published books are preserved in the Archives,² as of 2010 the following manuscripts of published Royce work did not appear to be housed there.³

- California
- Feud of Oakfield Creek
- Spirit of Modern Philosophy
- Outlines of Psychology
- Herbert Spencer
- War and Insurance
- *The Hope of the Great Community*⁴ in its final MS form,
- The Conception of Immortality, 1899 Ingersoll Lecture⁵

We also note that manuscripts for certain unpublished Royce work, which were at some point part of the Roycean corpus as it appeared in Loewenberg's "Bibliography of Unpublished Writings of Josiah Royce," Philosophical Review, 26 (September 1917): 578-82, are not included in the Harvard Archives Royce Papers:

- Royce's PhD. Dissertation MS: "On the Interdependence of the Principles of Knowledge" (1878). This MS is reserved at Johns Hopkins University and was forwarded by Loewenberg at Lovejoy's request. A typescript copy is contained in HARP at Box 119, Folder 6.
- A Manuscript Fragment or Sketch: "Studies on Progress," (1880).
- A Manuscript of Royce's Diary of Royce from January 18, 1880 onward.⁶

Concerning the evaluations offered throughout the Index, we ask the reader to remember that they are the frail, non-final appraisals of one person from his 2009 point of view – Frank Oppenheim (FMO), the point man of the "dig" team. He offers them to scholars and to the Royce Critical Edition editorial board for their communal appraisal, to

² See HARP Boxes 1-39.

³ It is possible that these manuscripts have been misplaced, or are housed in California or Baltimore archives. See William E. Hocking's four page list, written in pencil and folded under the front cover of "Loewenberg's Notebook" in HARP Box 142, folder 3 for a sense of what may have existed after Royce's death.

⁴ For a pre-final draft in edited typescript see HARP Box 51, document 2.

⁵ This is not the same manuscript that may be found in HARP Box 61, document 3, which bears the same title.

⁶ See Fugitive Essays 32-34 and Box 126, Folder 1.

confirm, disagree or significantly revise. He seeks that wiser conjoint interpretation of “the genuine mind of Royce” which the Critical Editors of his Writings are bound to portray. For other scholars and readers, the evaluations may serve as stimuli toward their own more critical appraisal of the person and mind of Royce.

Our “‘dig’ team” has sought accuracy throughout the project. Members of the Royce Society have examined drafts, made suggestions and edits, and have reported shortcomings. Nevertheless we recognize the possibility in-creeeping errors, and take full responsibility for those that still remain.

Time has not always been on our side in the project. We had planned on a fifteen month ‘dig,’ but a staph infection laid Professor Oppenheim low for two months, during which time his research assistant, Dawn Aberg, and John J. Kaag (working on a volunteer basis), kept the ‘dig’ going. From May to September 2009, Professor Oppenheim grew well enough to visit the Archives weekly and keep direction going by phone contact. The overall result is a Comprehensive Index that is not as perfect as we had planned. But we believe scholars will find it a useful guide to Royce’s writings, one well-suited for computer searches via topics, terms, dates, and hyperlinks.

This project would not have been possible without the persevering cooperation of the staff of the Harvard University Archives and its Chief Archivist, Megan Sniffin-Marinoff. To them we are deeply indebted.
